C. COURSE AND INSTRUCTIONAL INNOVATIONS

1. Developed, designed, and team-taught "the Tragedy of the Commons: Freedom, Regulation, and the Public Interest", with Professor Robert Carver of the Department of Business Administration (Spring, 1998). This course was selected by the Honors program as one of three interdisciplinary, team-taught senior honors seminars to be offered for the first time in 1997-98.
2. Developed, designed, and team-taught American Political Thought: The Federalist Papers with George Hagerty (Spring, 1994).
3. Team taught "Congress and the Presidency" with Andy Card, former Secretary of Transportation and White House Deputy Chief of Staff under President Bush, and the current Chief of Staff for President George W. Bush, and the second Martin Institute Visiting Scholar, Fall, 1993.

4. Re-designed and team-taught "Congress and the Presidency" with Robert Turner, political columnist with The Boston Globe, and the first Martin Institute visiting scholar (Fall, 1992).
5. Re-designed and taught "Environmental Policy and Politics, basing the course on a series of guest lecturers who are environmental policy makers at the federal, state, and local levels, as well as activists, journalists, and academics who specialize in environmental issues (Spring, 1991).
6. Guest lecturer in Professor Robert Rosenthal's course "The Great Depression"; I assessed the political and governmental impact of the New Deal (December, 1990).
7. Developed, designed, and taught new course entitled "Congress and the Presidency," first taught in the Fall semester of 1987.
8. "Internotia: An Environmental Policy Making Simulation" (1981), designed and written for use in my course entitled "Environmental Policy and Politics."
9. Use of published role-playing simulations in courses in Public Administration, State and Urban Politics, and American Government and Politics.
